Desroches Island, the Seychelles'

Desroches Island has opened four one-bedroom villas

Desroches Island is the main island of the Amirante Islands, part of the Outer Islands of the Seychelles. It is located 230 km southwest of Mahé, the Seychelles' main island.

Desroches has a population of about 50, a settlement in the middle of the northwestern shore and is a luxury holiday destination, with high-end accommodation in an island setting of lush, green forests and unspoilt white, sandy beaches.

The four new one- bedroom beachfront villas open this month with another four under construction.

Each luxurious villa is decorated in a modern, barefoot chic style and has its own deck, plunge pool. Private dining facilities are available to villa guests, allowing couples to have breakfast, lunch or dinner on the verandah.

Guests can explore the island's jungles and 13km of beaches, or take to the water, on the bicycles or kayaks provided with each villa.

Desroches Island truly is a dream destination, and with four more villas soon to be available, a few more guests can experience the holiday of their dreams.

Visit : www.desroches-island.com. To request a press trip contact Li Boatwright at li@storrington-communications.com.
