Visit Britain

VisitBritain has used the end of London 2012 Games to launch the next stage of the multi-million pound GREAT campaign that aims to see Britain breaking visitor records.

To capitalise on the Olympics led increase in global interest in Britain, a major marketing push has gone live with airlines, hotel companies and tour operators offering deals to foreign visitors.

In partnership with British Airways, £5m will be invested in the US, India, China, Japan and the Middle East, encouraging people to come to Britain for their Christmas shopping and the January sales.

To help capture the youth market VisitBritain has partnered with STA Travel and is working within their retail outlets and University Campuses to promote Britain for music, culture and shopping.

A digital campaign will also be rolled out with Expedia in the key markets of France, Germany and Italy.

A shopping campaign with Virgin Australia is also underway, with a mixture of digital, radio, print and trade advertising.

Reasons to write about

Alliance members looking to take advantage of any of the following should be on assignment, with a commission or able to obtain one.

Loch Lomond, Scotland

Loch Lomond is the largest loch in Great Britain by surface area and the second largest (after Loch Ness) by water volume.

Loch Lomond contains many islands, including Inchmurrin, the largest fresh-water island in the British Isles.

The loch is 39 kilometres (24 m) long and a maximum depth of about 190 metres (620 ft). Another of the loch's islands, Inchconnachan is home to a colony of wallaby.

Ben Lomond is the most southerly of Scotland's Munros. On a clear day, it is visible from the higher grounds of Glasgow and eastwards across the low-lying central valley of Scotland; this may have led to it being named 'Beacon Mountain', as with the equally far-seen Lomond Hills in Fife.

Ben Lomond summit can also be seen from Ben Nevis, the highest peak in Britain, over 70 miles (110 km) away. It may also host the most southerly breeding ptarmigan population in Scotland.

Autumn walking in Loch Lomond

The Loch Lomond area has three of Scotland's Great Trails.

Three Lochs Way

Linking towns and villages on the west side of Loch Lomond between Balloch and Inveruglas, the Three Lochs Way is a varied, scenic and generally low-level 52 kilometre (32.3 miles) route which can easily be walked in three to four days.

The route also offers lots of attractive and interesting options for people seeking shorter day walks - and with some great downhill sections, mountain bikers are sure to enjoy the Three Lochs Way too. Total ascent over the whole route is approximately 900 metres.

Now with a free smartphone app.

Visit : www.threelochsway.co.uk

The West Highland Way

The 154Km (96 miles) route starts at Milngavie, follows the shores of Loch Lomond, passing Ben Lomond, through Glen Falloch and then on north out of the LLL area.

Visit : www.west-highland-way.co.uk.

Rob Roy Way

This long distance walk (148km/ 92.5 miles) uses part of National Cycle Route 7, forest paths, farmland tracks, dismantled railway track and minor roads.

The Rob Roy Way starts at Drymen and passes through Aberfoyle, Callander and then proceeds eastwards out of the LLL area.

The Arch London

The Arch London was inspired by the nearby London landmark, Marble Arch, and the local neighbourhood. It spans seven Grade II-listed townhouses and two mews homes.

This autumn the boutique hotel introduces their new Work, Live and Play Packages to showcase the very best offering for business travellers, those who want to experience the very best of the Capital and guests looking for a romantic city break à deux.

Installations of commissioned art by emerging British artists can be found throughout the hotel.

The Arch London has achieved several awards this year, having been voted one of the Top 25 Trendiest Hotels in the UK on TripAdvisor and Most Popular UK Hotel by members of Small Luxury Hotels of the World.
